65 tortured bodies found in Baghdad as violence escalates

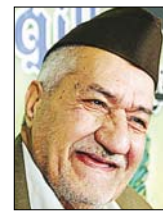

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | The leader of Iraq's biggest Sunni Arab group demanded Wednesday that the beleaguered Shiite-led government take steps to disarm militias after police said the bodies of 65 tortured men were dumped in and around Baghdad.

On a violent day even by the standards of Baghdad, car bombs, mortars and other attacks also killed at least 39 people and wounded dozens. Two U.S. soldiers also were killed, one in enemy action in restive Anbar province on Monday and the other in a roadside bombing south of Baghdad on Tuesday, the U.S. military command said.

The attacks have been unrelenting despite a security crackdown around the capital by 12,000 U.S. and Iraqi troops. The more than 1,500 violent deaths last month at the height of the joint operation speak to the difficulties in restoring security.

Adnan al-Dulaimi, a Sunni who heads the Iraqi Accordance Front political party, al-Dulaimi

called on Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki, a Shiite, to take a first step by honoring a pledge to disband militias.

"We hope the government carries out what it pledged and disbands militias and considers them terrorist organizations," al-Dulaimi told The Associated Press. "We call upon all religious authorities to raise their voices and demand militias be disarmed." (AP)

PAWNING

Talk About a Band That Sells Out

A man hired to clean band instruments for California elementary school districts was arrested last month for allegedly pawning dozens of trombones, trumpets and flutes. Joseph Rogers — who no longer works for the schools — is accused of pawning instruments from school districts in Kingsburg and Traver, where Rogers had worked part time. He no longer works for the schools. "It looked like a good deal for us. We had who we thought was a trusted employee," said Kingsburg Elementary Charter district Superintendent Mark Ford. Sheriff's officials retrieved more than three-dozen instruments at a pawn shop. Rogers, 42, is charged with felony embezzlement. (AP)

'Help! Somebody Call The ... Oh, Geez'

Alexandria, Tenn., officials are scrambling to hire a new police force after the entire department resigned last month, the Tennessean reported. The officers quit after town officials proposed scaling back the officers' hours. Banks have now hired private security guards, but other residents are now afraid that the city is vulnerable to criminals who will take advantage of the lack of police. "We're just advertising that our pockets are open, come on and dip your hands in," said Allen Webb, a drugstore owner. (EXPRESS)

A Virginia Beach, Va., ATM was reprogrammed last month to give out extra cash, WVEC-TV reported. A man broke the security pass code at a gas-station ATM and made the machine believe it was giving $5 bills instead of $20 bills, police said. For example, if a customer asked for $200, the person would normally receive 10 bills — but, with the change, the person would receive 40 bills, or $800. (EXPRESS)

Wildfires across the country have scorched more land in 2006 than in any year since at least 1960, burning an area twice the size of New Jersey. But the flames have mainly raced across sparsely populated desert, causing fewer firefighter deaths than in previous years. As of Wednesday, blazes had torched 13,584 square miles, just above last year's total of 13,573 square miles. (AP)

Primaries a Warm-Up for November

Party convictions take a backseat in brutal congressional races

WASHINGTON | All politics is national in the 2006 midterm elections, with both parties willing to put aside deeply held views over war, taxes and more in the surpassing struggle for control of the House and Senate.

Which explains why a conservative Republican Party rejoiced Wednesday at the primary victory of Rhode Island's incorrigibly independent GOP Sen. Lincoln Chafee, and struggled with the defeat of the more moderate of two leading contenders for a House seat in Arizona.

Or why Democrats, whose leaders call daily for a timetable for a troop withdrawal from Iraq, were less than thrilled to find vigorously anti-war contenders winning nominations for House seats in New Hampshire and New York.

BIG WIN: Sen. Lincoln Chafee beat GOP challenger Stephen Laffey, mayor of Cranston, R.I., in a close race, and now faces Sheldon Whitehouse in November.

Nowhere was the phenomenon more obvious than Rhode Island, where Republicans placed an abundance of money and manpower into an effort to save their most liberal senator from defeat at the hands of a conservative primary challenger. In case anyone missed the point, she recast it in more overtly political terms.

"This race would've immediately fallen into the hands of the Democrats if, in fact, Linc Chafee had lost this race," said Sen. Elizabeth Dole.

Nationally, Democrats must gain six seats to capture control of the Senate.

Not that Rhode Island is safe for Chafee or the Republicans in the fall. The state's former attorney general, Sheldon Whitehouse, drew more votes in an essentially uncontested Democratic primary than Chafee and Laffey combined in their heated race, and the most recent pre-primary polls point toward a close race in November.

"Rhode Islanders are going to know I'm independent, over and over again," he said. DAVID ESPO (AP)

GOP, White House Clash on Detainees

WASHINGTON | Negotiations between the White House and a trio of powerful GOP senators snagged Wednesday over Bush administration demands that Congress reinterpret the nation's treaty obligations to allow tough CIA interrogations of terrorism suspects.

Sen. John Warner, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, said his panel would meet Thursday to finalize an alternative to President Bush's plan to prosecute terror suspects and redefine acts that constitute war crimes. Warner said he was aware the White House may come out in opposition.

The Supreme Court ruled in June that Bush's court system established to prosecute terrorism suspects was illegal and violated the Geneva Conventions. (AP)

GOP Blocks Spying Curbs

Senate panel votes to endorse White House bill on wiretapping

WASHINGTON | Senate Republicans blocked Democratic attempts to rein in President Bush's domestic wiretapping program Wednesday, endorsing a White House-supported bill that would give the controversial surveillance legal status. Under pressure from the Bush administration for quick action, the full Senate could take up the measure next week.

Progress on a companion bill in the House of Representatives was not as tidy, in part because Republican leaders and Bush are intensely negotiating restrictions it proposes on the surveillance program. Even as the Senate Judiciary Committee advanced Chairman Arlen Specter's bill to the Senate floor on a party line vote, the same panel in the House abruptly canceled its scheduled markup.

The developments come amid a sustained White House campaign to persuade Congress to give the administration broad authority to monitor, interrogate and prosecute terrorism suspects. The administration is up against an election season in which Republicans are struggling to keep its majority with approval from a war-weary electorate.

Specter has acknowledged that Republican lawmakers fighting for re-election may not embrace a measure bearing Bush's stamp of approval.

While refusing to give the president a blank check to prosecute the war on terrorism, Republicans in the Senate Judiciary Committee kept to the White House's condition that a bill giving legal status to the surveillance program pass unamended. That's not a sure thing on the Senate floor, where several amendments await the measure.

The panel also approved other measures relating to the program, some of which contradict Specter's bill. LAURIE KELLMAN (AP)

HOUSTON | For the second straight day, spacewalking astronauts toiled on a brand-new 17 1/2-ton addition to the international space station, removing protective covers and loosening latches and bolts that held the hardware down during the jolting ride into orbit.

The 7-hour, 11-minute spacewalk brought the total amount of time dedicated to assembling and maintaining the half-built space station to 431 hours and 54 minutes.

The installation of the new piece — a $372 million, 45-foot truss that holds electricity-generating solar panels — marks the first time since the Columbia disaster more than 3 1/2 years ago that construction on the orbiting outpost has resumed.

Space shuttle Atlantis astronauts Dan Burbank, an American, and Steve MacLean, a Canadian, grunted through the last hour or so of the first spacewalk of their career, as they fought to loosen a few stubborn bolts. (AP)

Detroit Teachers Vote Ends Strike Over Contracts

DETROIT | Teachers voted Wednesday to end their more than two-week strike and pave the way for Detroit's 130,000 students to return to their classrooms on Thursday, seven school days late.

The union's executive board approved a tentative three-year contract Tuesday, and teachers voted Wednesday to return to work while the ratification vote takes place by mail.

"We stayed united. We made great sacrifices, because we were fighting for what is right," Detroit Federation of Teachers President Janna Garrison told the thousands of teachers gathered at Cobo Arena.

The walkout began Aug. 28 after teachers rejected a two-year contract proposal. Classes had been scheduled to start Sept. 5.

The financially struggling district initially sought a 5.5 percent pay cut over two years. (AP)

FBI agents position themselves outside the bank in Dolton, Ill., on Wednesday.

Standoff At Ill. Bank Ends Safely

DOLTON, ILL. | An apparent robbery attempt turned hostage situation ended after about three hours Wednesday with no injuries, but authorities said they were still searching for a gunman.

Police entered the Heritage Community Bank in the Chicago suburb of Dolton and found two employees uninjured in the bank's downstairs bathroom, said Police Chief Elton McClendon.

They cleared the building after an initial search but did not find anyone with a gun, McClendon said. Authorities had blocked off several streets around the building as police from at least three towns, FBI agents and the South Suburban Major Crimes Task Force worked to resolve the situation.

Four to five customers and employees were able to escape when the incident started, Dolton village spokesman Sean Howard said.

Howard said officers had communicated with people inside the building. He said no one had been injured. SOPHIA TAREEN (AP)

Gunman opens fire at Montreal college, wounding at least 20

MONTREAL | A gunman in a black trench coat and sporting a mohawk haircut opened fire Wednesday at a Montreal college and wounded at least 20 people — six critically — before he apparently was killed by police, witnesses and authorities said.

Scores of panicked students at Dawson College near downtown fled into the surrounding streets after the shooting broke out at the school of about 10,000.

Police spokesman Ean Lafreniere said there was just one gunman at the school and the search for any others was over.

Although police initially suggested the gunman had killed himself, Police Director Yvan DeLorme later said at a news conference that "based on current information, the suspect was killed by police."

He also dismissed suggestions that race or terrorism played a role.

Montreal General Hospital said 11 people were admitted, including six who were in critical condition.

The other nine were taken to two other hospitals.

Witnesses said a man wearing a black trench coat entered the school cafeteria and opened fire, without saying a word.

Derick Osei, 19, said he was walking down the stairs to the second-floor cafeteria when he saw a man with a gun.

"He ... just started shooting up the place," Osei said. "He was hiding behind the vending machines and he came out with a gun and started pointing and pointed at me. So I ran up the stairs. I saw a girl get shot in the leg." PHIL COUVRETTE (AP)

A.U. Force Is Told to Exit Darfur

Sudan calls on A.U. to leave if it continues to back U.N. takeover

ADDIS ABABA, ETHIOPIA | Sudan formally called on the African Union Wednesday to pull its peacekeepers out of Darfur by the end of the month if it continues to support a U.N. takeover of the mission.

A 7,000-strong A.U. force is now in the western region of Sudan but is understaffed, starved of cash and eager to hand over to the U.N.

"If the A.U. wants to transfer the mission to the U.N., then they have to pack up their troops and leave by the 30th of September," Al-Samani Al-Wasila, Sudan's junior foreign affairs minister, told journalists after meeting with A.U. officials in Addis Ababa.

The United Nations has been trying to persuade Sudan to allow the U.N. to take over the African Union peacekeeping force, which has been unable to stop the violence in the war-torn region.

But Sudan's President Omar al-Bashir repeatedly has rejected the proposal, and has said his army would fight any U.N. forces sent to Darfur. LES NEUHAUS (AP) Government spokesman Ghazi Hamad said in a statement that the ministers handed their portfolios over to Prime Minister Ismail Haniyeh, a Hamas leader.

This is the first procedural step toward formation of the new unity government. The next one would be Haniyeh's handing in his resignation to President Mahmoud Abbas, who would then pick a candidate to form a new government — probably Haniyeh.

China Further Tightens Rules On Court Access

BEIJING | China is extending its clampdown on media to the courts, threatening severe punishment for court officials who leak information to reporters.

New rules forbid court officials from releasing information without approval about cases involving national security, ethnic groups, religion, important emergencies, unspecified "sensitive issues" or cases involving foreigners, the official Xinhua News Agency reported Wednesday.

The rules come amid a government campaign to tighten control over Chinese media and Internet use. Dozens of journalists have been jailed and others fired after reporting too aggressively on corruption and other sensitive issues. (AP)

Nations fail to commit 2,500 extra troops to help combat Taliban

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | NATO nations failed to agree on calls by military commanders for 2,500 extra troops to help crush the growing Taliban-led insurgency in Afghanistan, where at least 50 people were killed Wednesday in widespread violence.

NATO announced that 173 people — including 151 Afghan civilians — have been killed in suicide bombings across the country since the start of the year. The remaining victims include NATO and U.S.-led coalition forces and Afghan authorities.

taken U.S. and NATO commanders by surprise, particularly in southern provinces.

Some 8,000 Canadian, British and Dutch soldiers are leading the anti-Taliban push in the south. But military chiefs say another 2,500 troops, plus greater air support, would help them crush the Taliban threat more quickly.

In Brussels, Belgium, allied military experts failed Wednesday to commit more troops, planes and helicopters to the NATO mission, despite a plea by the alliance's U.S. commander, Gen. James L. Jones.

NATO spokesman James Appathurai told a news conference that a final decision may have to wait until a Sept. 28-29 meeting of NATO defense ministers in Slovenia. PAUL GARWOOD (AP)

Lonelygirl Shakes Up Virtual Reality

Popular Internet video diarist officially outed as fictitious character

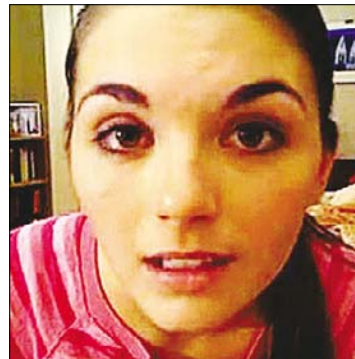

LOS ANGELES | The creators behind the Internet video mystery teen Lonelygirl15 want their fans to know they are not a front for a big Hollywood studio marketing some upcoming film.

Instead, the three friends began the adventures of the doe-eyed, 16-year-old home-schooled Bree as an experiment in storytelling that they intend to continue on their own Web site that was launched Tuesday.

The short videos began appearing on the Web sites YouTube and MySpace in June. The creators said Tuesday that they never intended to stage a hoax.

One of the creators, Mesh Flinders, 26, of Petaluma, Calif., said he had been developing the character of a teenage girl who was more at home relating to adults than to her peers. The character never quite fit into any of his screenplays, but seemed to be a perfect fit for Beckett's idea of telling stories using video blogging.

Flinders writes scripts for each

Lonelygirl15's video posts were a big hit on sites like MySpace and YouTube.

"episode" and the actress playing Bree delivers her lines with a persuasive power that still has some believing she is genuine.

The revelation that Bree was fake initially angered fans on YouTube, who suspected Lonelygirl15 was a slick Hollywood attempt to advertise an upcoming movie or TV show.

But since the creators revealed its fictitious nature last week, the number of people subscribing to the Lonelygirl15 channel on YouTube has skyrocketed.

Bree's adventures will continue on a new Web site created in conjunction with the online syndication network Revver. GARY GENTILE (AP)

WASHINGTON

Treasury Chief to Push for Chinese Economic Reform

Treasury Secretary Henry Paulson said Wednesday that he will urge the Chinese to move more quickly to adopt economic reforms, including a more flexible currency. Paulson's first extended remarks on China signaled an apparent shift in an administration strategy away from applying extensive pressure on the Chinese to do more to allow their currency — the yuan — to rise in value against the dollar as a way of dealing with a huge and rising U.S. trade deficit with China. ### Mortgage Foreclosures Inch Up Amid Changing Economy

Mortgage foreclosures climbed in the spring as higher interest rates and energy prices made monthly payments harder for some homeowners. The Mortgage Bankers Association, in its quarterly mortgage survey released Wednesday, reported that the percentage of mortgages that started the foreclosure process in the April-to-June quarter rose to 0.43 percent. That was up from 0.41 percent in the first quarter and was the highest in just over a year. The association's survey covers 42.5 million loans. (AP)

DROPPING THE BALLOT: Montgomery County Executive Douglas Duncan asked Gov. Ehrlich on Wednesday to remove election board president Nancy Dacek, an Ehrlich appointee, after widespread problems that hampered and delayed voting.

Md. Senate Race: Cardin vs. Steele

Representative who opposes war in Iraq bests ex-NAACP head

BALTIMORE | Rep. Ben Cardin, a veteran congressman who voted against the war in Iraq, won the Democratic nomination to replace retiring Democratic Sen. Paul Sarbanes.

Cardin had edged out his closest competitor, former NAACP head Kweisi Mfume, and 16 other candidates and will face Republican Lt. Gov. Michael Steele in November.

"We are united," Cardin said Wednesday. "We ran a campaign that wasn't about our election; it was about November's election. We need to change the direction of the country. We had two people running who shared the same commitment."

Cardin stopped short of declaring total victory, and Mfume didn't concede the race.

"It's how you finish — and we're not finished!" Mfume, a former congressman, told volunteers, friends and relatives. However, he acknowledged that victory was unlikely and said Cardin would "be a damn good senator representing the state of Maryland."

With 93 percent of precincts reporting, Cardin had 225,439 votes, or 46 percent, to Mfume's 185,580, or 38 percent.

Steele, former head of the state GOP, faced little-known challengers Tuesday and cruised to victory with 87 percent of the Republican vote. KRISTEN WYATT (AP)

51-Year Career Ends

Incumbent William Donald Schaefer loses primary to Franchot

ANNAPOLIS, MD. | For 51 years, Marylanders enjoyed — or at least tolerated — William Donald Schaefer's ungovernable mouth and oddball behavior and swept him into the office of his choice every time he ran. But finally, they had enough.

On Tuesday, the 84-year-old former governor and former Baltimore mayor lost big in his bid for another term as state comptroller, losing to state lawmaker Peter Franchot, done in apparently by antics that had transformed his image from lovable eccentric to mean old man — and a clueless, sexist one, at that. The colorful unpredictability that was part of his charm had worn thin in recent years, and he seemed to have pushed many voters over the line with his biting criticism of Janet Owens, a county executive who joined the race when polls showed he was vulnerable.

Schaefer finished last in the three-way race for the Democratic nomination. TOM STUCKEY (AP)

Fenty Vows Fight for D.C. Statehood

WASHINGTON | Democratic mayoral nominee Adrian Fenty vowed on Wednesday to continue the door-to-door campaign that won Tuesday's primary election in the city's drive for full congressional representation.

"We actually plan on knocking on every door in Congress and talking to people to get them on our side," Fenty said, even as he geared up for a general election campaign that is expected to be less challenging than was his primary victory over six challengers.

Fenty, 35, is expected to easily defeat Republican David W. Kranich and Statehood-Green Party candidate Chris Otten in the Nov. 7 general election, and is already working with outgoing Mayor Anthony A. Williams on a transition. (AP)

Exposed Secondary Misses Springs

Redskins cornerback will likely miss game against Dallas as well

REDSKINS | Carlos Rogers strutted and did a little dance, an odd bit of celebration considering he had just been beaten by a receiver.

As it turned out, the receiver, Troy Williamson, let the ball go through his hands, denying the Minnesota Vikings a sure touchdown. Rogers, trailing the play by a step or two, behaved as if he'd made an interception that won the game.

"That's an incomplete pass, so I won," Rogers said. "That's the way I look at it."

Whether the antics were appropriate or not, the Washington Redskins cornerback definitely wasn't dancing when he got toasted again in third quarter.

Rogers was the most egregious offender in a weak performance by a secondary that really, really missed Shawn Springs. Springs is recovering from surgery, and he's not expected to return in time for Sunday night's game, when the Redskins will have to deal with

The last game Shawn Springs played in for the Redskins was Jan. 14 at Seattle.

Terrell Owens, Terry Glenn and the rest of the Dallas Cowboys.

"Shawn does mean a lot to this team," defensive end Phillip Daniels said. "We do need him out there. He was a guy that nobody threw at last year. He held his own over there."

Four weeks have passed since Springs had surgery on a torn muscle in his abdomen, and he's yet to return to practice.

"Obviously I want to be out there making plays, and I can't right now,"

Springs said. "We knew when we opted to have the surgery that I wouldn't be here for the first couple of games. We've just to keep working at it."

For now, Rogers is the No. 1 cornerback. But he is still learning some of the tricks of the trade.

"Carlos has got to remember that he's a second-year guy, and he's going to have to prove himself," Springs said. "He's got all the talent in the world ... but you and I both know it's hard to get that off your back. The only way you can that off your back is to make plays."

Tiger Takes on the World — 3 Times

The next set of overseas tournaments are all top priority for Woods

GOLF | Tiger Woods wasn't about to fall for the $1 million question this time.

The last time the Ryder Cup was held in Europe, Woods played the week before the matches and gave tabloids plenty of headline material when asked which event he would rather win. He chose the American Express Championship at Mount Juliet and its $1 million prize.

"Why? I can think of a million reasons," Woods said that day.

Woods' three-week tour of England and Ireland begins Thursday at the World Match Play Championship, which has the richest official prize money in the world with 1 million pounds (about Tiger Woods prepares for the World Match Play Championship, where he is the No. 2 seed and tries to win his sixth consecutive tournament starting on Thursday.

$1.87 million) going to the winner. It ends with the American Express Championship outside London, a World Golf Championship that pays $1.3 million for first place.

In between is that exhibition over in Ireland that offers only a 17-inch gold cup.

The question inevitably came up again this week. Would he rather win a million pounds or the Ryder Cup?

"All three events I play in," Woods said.

It was a diplomatic answer, for sure. And the way he has been playing, it's not hard to imagine.

Woods will try to win his sixth consecutive tournament at the HSBC World Match Play Championship, a streak that began with his British Open victory at Hoylake in July and continued with his victory outside Boston two weeks ago, when he closed with a 63 to rally from three shots down to Vijay Singh. ## Backup Arrested After Teammate Is Stabbed in Leg

COLLEGE FOOTBALL | The backup punter at Northern Colorado has been arrested on suspicion of stabbing his teammate — the starting punter — in the kicking leg.

The motive may have been competition for the first-string job, police said Wednesday.

Mitch Cozad was accused of attacking punter Rafael Mendoza in a parking lot Monday night, Evans police Lt. Gary Kessler said.

Mendoza was treated and released from the North Colorado Medical Center Monday night. Coach Scott Downing said Mendoza will not punt in Saturday's game at Texas State University.

Cozad was suspended from school and from the team, university officials said in a news release. (AP)

Studying the Antidepressant Effects of Sleep Deprivation

Sleep deprivation has rapid & brief antidepressant effects in some depressed people. NIMH is exploring how a drug that mimics the effects of sleep deprivation in the brain, may also bring about a rapid antidepressant response in people who are depressed. Understanding how this works may help us understand depression and design better antidepressants. Study includes multiple overnight stays & free sleep evaluations to rule out sleep disorders. NIMH is seeking people ages 18-60 with depression who:

- Are free of other serious medical conditions
- Do not have any sleep disorders

SHAKESPEARE
THEATRE COMPANY
Presents

An Enemy of the People

by Henrik Ibsen

translated by Rick Davis and Brian Johnston directed by Kjetil Bang-Hansen

“★★★★☆ Kjetil Bang-Hansen more than achieves the company's traditional level of excellence. The stage belongs to the believable and heartfelt emotion of Joseph Urla ... Philip Goodwin is masterful and chilling.”
Garrett M. Graff, The Washingtonian

“Uncannily relevant ... Samantha Soule delivers a powerful performance. Robin Gammell truly shines.”
Tim Plant, Metro Weekly

“Bang-Hansen's sure-footed ‘Enemy’ avoids the traps other Ibsen productions fall into, and provides an entertainment in which topicality is not a synonym for dryness.”
Peter Marks, The Washington Post

“An intelligent read on the play ... a fierce attack on party politics and self-interested timidity.”
Trey Graham, Washington City Paper

“Intense and impassioned ... this production speaks loudly to us today.”
Gary Tischler, The Downtowner

“Riveting ... It is deeply moving and thought-provoking.”
Marilou Donahue, Artistically Speaking

The One That Got Away

Back was ready to go to Maryland before Terps rescinded scholarship

TERPS FOOTBALL | Steve Slaton was so good last week that his team only needed him for one half.

It took him just eight carries to amass 105 yards and set his team on the path to an easy victory. He played a little longer the previous week, when he gained 203 yards, and in last season's Sugar Bowl, when he rushed for 204 yards.

Coach Ralph Friedgen admitted this week just how good Slaton would look in a Maryland Terrapins uniform. Had he fully understood that fact when Slaton, now a sophomore, was in high school, it could have been a reality.

In fact, Maryland rescinded a scholarship offer to Slaton, who planned to accept it, after a commitment from Lackey High School's Morgan Green filled the Terrapins' quota for the position. Green, now a freshman, has yet to make a push for playing time.

"We had too many running backs," Friedgen said. "Do I wish he was here? Yes, I do. Did I screw up? Yes, I did."

"Some big-time programs bring down goalposts; West Virginia and Maryland just burn, baby."

Columnist Mike Wise says the Terps-Mountaineers game might be closer than expected | Sports

IN The Washington Post

That episode has not escaped Friedgen this week as he tries to prepare his team to take on Slaton and the No. 5 West Virginia Mountaineers in Morgantown. The rabid crowd is never exactly welcoming, but the bunch on the field can be even more intimidating. West Virginia has beaten Marshall and Eastern Washington by a combined score of 94-13. And though

FRONT-RUNNER: Running back Steve Slaton, right, outruns Georgia defenders on his way to 204 yards in last year's Sugar Bowl. On Thursday, he faces the Terrapins.

3 BURNING QUESTIONS:

→ Turn the Tides? West Virginia has yet to throw an interception or lose a fumble this season. Maryland has turned the ball over six times. If the Terrapins can protect the ball on offense and force turnovers on defense, the likelihood of an upset increases dramatically.

→ Run up the score? In two games, Maryland has run 74 times and passed just 35. "We want to make it the identity of this team," guard Donnie Woods said. "We want to be an offense that can just pound the ball."

→ Can West Virginia be grounded? The Terrapins must force the Mountaineers to rely more heavily on a passing game that has averaged just 126 yards per game since the start of 2005.

the Terrapins have scored relatively easy victories over William & Mary and Middle Tennessee, tonight's matchup is something bigger. A win would be the Terps' first road victory against an opponent ranked fifth or higher since 1950.

"I really think if we push through and win a game like this, it'll do wonders for our confidence," Friedgen said.

It won't be easy. The Mountaineers' dynamic offense features not only Slaton, but also threats in full-back Owen Schmitt — a Fairfax native also recruited by the Terps — and mobile quarterback Pat White.

"It's going to be a challenge with all three of them," defensive coordinator Chris Cosh said. "It's going to make you defend the whole field."

CAPTAIN CLARK: Chris Clark, center, shows off his new jersey with the captain's "C" on the shoulder. He set career highs with 20 goals and 39 points last season.

Caps Name Quiet Clark as Captain

Right wing will work with the more vocal Kolzig to lead team

CAPITALS | If the NHL allowed goaltenders to be captains, Olie Kolzig would have been wearing the "C" on his jersey for several years already. As it is, the Washington Capitals announced Wednesday that Chris Clark will be the team's on-ice leader this season — a role he fully expects to share with the man behind the mask.

Clark, entering his sixth NHL season and second with the Capitals, succeeds Jeff Halpern, who left as a free agent to sign with Dallas.

Both general manager George McPhee and coach Glen Hanlon described Clark as "quiet," making him a good counterpart for the vocal Kolzig.

"Olie's that type of person, very charismatic, very vocal," Clark said. "Anything that needed to be addressed, it was a tandem between him and Jeff, so I see that as a partnership again this year."

Clark played five seasons with Calgary before joining the Capitals. He set career highs with 20 goals and 39 points last season. (AP)

Twins' Ace Out Again

In first start back from DL, Liriano leaves in 3rd as Minnesota loses

BASEBALL | Rookie Francisco Liriano's highly anticipated return to the Minnesota rotation came to a sudden halt because of elbow problems Wednesday and Dan Haren pitched eight shutout innings, leading the Oakland Athletics over the Twins 1-0.

Pitching for the first time in more than a month, Liriano slumped off the mound in the middle of the third inning. Trainers and manager Ron Gardenhire immediately rushed out to attend to the All-Star lefty and a hush fell over the crowd.

Liriano walked slowly toward the dugout and fans gave him a standing ovation — clearly, they were wondering whether they had seen the last of him this year.

The Twins, leading the AL wild-card race, announced later that he had pain in his left elbow.

A strong Rookie of the Year candidate, Liriano was 12-3 with a 2.19 ERA before leaving a start against Detroit on Aug. 8 with a strained ligament in his arm.

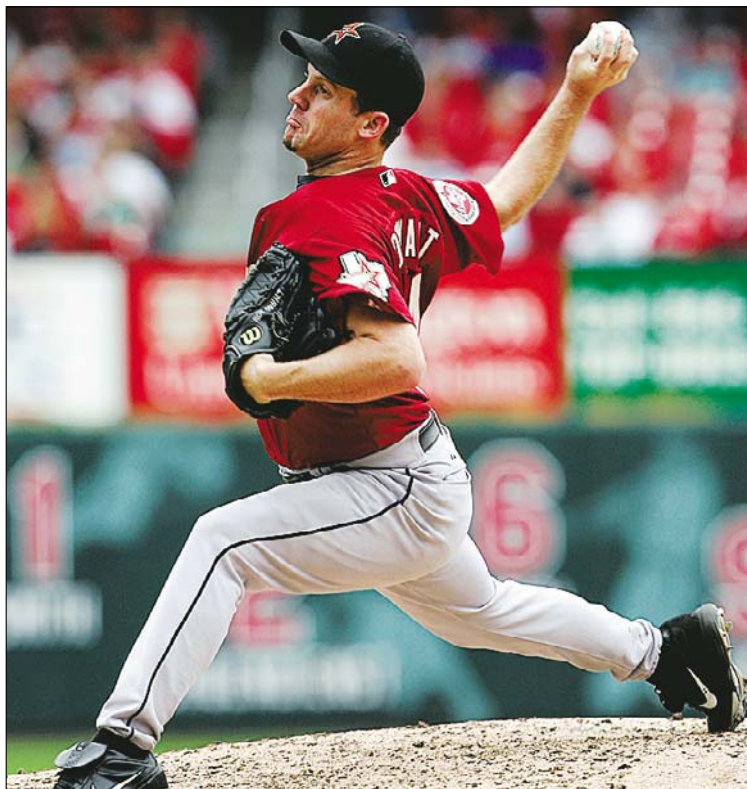

Matt Garza (1-5) pitched well in emergency relief, but he was outduled by Haren (14-11).

Haren struck out seven and allowed three hits and Huston Street picked up his 32nd save to help the Athletics avoid their first three-game losing streak since July 23-25.

The Athletics, who started the day 4 1/2 games ahead of the Angels in the AL West, scored in the sixth.

Astros Avoid a Sweep With 5-1 Win at Cards

Berkman hits his 40th home run of the year to help Oswalt get victory

BASEBALL | Roy Oswalt pitched shutout ball into the ninth inning and Lance Berkman hit his 40th home run, helping the Houston Astros bounce back from a dispiriting loss to beat the St. Louis Cardinals 5-1 Wednesday.

The Astros ended a three-game losing streak and averted a three-game sweep against a team they're chasing in the NL Central.

The Cardinals got only two runners into scoring position before the ninth against Oswalt (13-8), who gave up one run on seven hits in 8 1/3 innings.

With one out in the ninth, the Cardinals hit three consecutive singles off Oswalt for their lone run. Trevor Miller relieved and got one out and Dan Wheeler earned his fifth save in seven chances by striking out pinch-hitter Preston Wilson.

Berkman was 0-for-8 in the first two games of the series with five strikeouts before going 3-for-4 with a walk in the finale. He was a triple shy of the cycle and his homer off Josh Hancock in the sixth gave the Astros a 5-0 lead. (AP)

HOT FLASHES NIGHT SWEATS

*The words are uncomfortable enough.
The feeling is worse!*

Hot flashes that occur during the day or at night are a common post-menopausal complaint. You wake up drenched, then you freeze; or strangers in the grocery ask if you're OK.

A NON-HORMONAL investigational medication is now being tested to see if it can help control HOT FLASHES.

If you are at least 40 years old, experience multiple HOT FLASHES and NIGHT SWEATS each week, had your last period at least 6 months ago and are prepared NOT to use hormone therapy or antidepressants during this 12-week study, call today to see if you qualify to participate.

As a study participant you may be compensated for your travel, and receive at no cost, physical exam, EKG, and study-related lab tests.

Call for more information.

The otherworldly tale of how 'Stargate' became a sci-fi hit

RETURN | Its premise is based on an only moderately successful sci-fi feature. It has endured the loss of its lead actor and changes in time slots and channels. But perhaps it was simply in the stars for "Stargate SG-1" to become the longest-running sci-fi show on U.S. television to date.

When "Stargate," the feature film starring Kurt Russell and James Spader, opened in theaters in October 1994, at least one audience member saw the possibility of mining the intergalactic battle between mortals and Ra-worshipping aliens for TV thrills.

"I recognized immediately that there was a terrific series there, simply because there's a gate that can get you to other planets," said "Atlantis" co-creator and "SG-1" executive producer and writer Brad Wright, then a co-executive producer and writer on the syndicated "The Outer Limits." One other person agreed: Wright's fellow "Limits" executive producer Jonathan Glassner. Showtime gave Wright and Glassner a two-season commitment. Richard Dean Anderson agreed to play then-Col. Jack O'Neill, with Amanda Tapping and Christopher Judge joining on as his alien-battling colleagues. "In the series, O'Neill has hope and is funny," Wright said. "Dick can't not be funny."

Anderson's humor served him well during the show's first season. There were rocky story lines, and there was cringe-worthy dialogue. And there was a creative argument with Showtime.

Wright still bristles at remembering how the channel wanted full-frontal nudity. "People said, 'It's Showtime sci-fi — that's what fans want,'" he said. "We got lambasted by the critics for it."

Showtime's two-year commitment and a solid business plan that spun the show into syndication after a year meant the cast and crew had a chance to develop space legs.

But the following year, Showtime decided not to renew the series. Enter Sci Fi Channel, a natural fit for the series, and no full-frontal nudity required.

For Tapping, the show's longevity is a double-edged sword. "How can you look a gift horse in the mouth?" she asked, adding, "Someday, I'd love to play a character who wore Manolo Blahniks instead of army boots." REBECCA ASCHER-WALSH (THE HOLLYWOOD REPORTER)

Talking Head Now Fox Exec

BUMP UP | CNBC personality Alexis Glick signed on as the No. 2 business executive behind Neil Cavuto at Fox News Channel, a move that suggests that Fox is preparing for the possible launch of its own business network.

Glick will help direct the network's business coverage and appear on-air if Fox owner News Corp. decides to start the business channel. That new channel has been talked about for years, but Fox chief Roger Ailes has said he won't pull the trigger unless he gets enough distribution on cable and satellite systems.

"I'd be foolish, as the guy who does business news, not to prepare ourselves for the possibility," said Cavuto.

Before getting into television, Glick, 34, was an executive director at Morgan Stanley, where she led New York Stock Exchange floor operations. She then became a reporter at the stock exchange for CNBC's "Squawk Box."

Glick said she is looking forward to getting back into a management role.

Fox was attractive to her because it had the ability to look at many news stories as business stories, she said. DAVID BAUDER (AP)

HECK, WE ALL LOVE OPRAH: Maya Angelou will host a weekly show for XM Satellite Radio's "Oprah & Friends" channel. "I love Oprah a lot," said the novelist and poet, "and I'm excited with anything she's doing."

'Survivor' Survives

CBS program has endured — like other mediocre programs

KNOCKING ON WOOD | Will the controversial makeup of this season's "tribes" doom "Survivor"? One can hope.

I don't know what's more surprising — that “Survivor: Cook Islands” (8 p.m., CBS) marks the 13th installment of this reality series, or the announcement that this season’s “Survivor” will play the race card and divide the “tribes” along ethnic and racial lines.

"Survivor" has the longevity of other mediocrities: game shows, soap operas and "Entertainment Tonight." They're all junk food, the kind that renders you sluggish, obese and witless, glued to a recliner and unsure of how you got there.

MONTY BRINTON/CBS

TRIUMPH OF THE WILL? These Asians hope to demonstrate their superiority.

The decision to divide the teams into groups of Asians, blacks, whites and Hispanics has sparked controversy and an exodus of advertisers. Defenders and spokespeople for "Survivor" argue that they are bringing diversity to a show that in the past has been dominated by white applicants, white players and white winners. You have to expect that after a week or three, the teams will merge into more integrated units and Jeff Probst and the players will have a Kumbaya moment around the tiki torches. ## Sleep In at the Drive-In

Travel

Catch a flick before catching some zzzs at theater motels

Who needs a car at the drive-in theater? Just go straight to bed.

The Fairlee Motel & Drive-In Theater, in Fairlee, Vt., combines the best of roadside America. Drive in, and you have your classic outdoor experience. Check in, and a picture window and NuTone speaker give you the same show from your king-size bed — with air conditioning and no mosquitoes. Someone taller than about 5 feet, 8 inches can even watch the movie from the shower, through the tiny bathroom window.

The Fairlee is one of at least two drive-in motels in the U.S. Another is the Best Western Movie Manor in Monte Vista, Colo.

The Fairlee sits along Route 5 in eastern Vermont. At dusk, groups of young campers arrive in vans from nearby Lake Fairlee and spread blankets near the screen. The Fairlee has daily shows after July 4 and double features on weekends, attracting between 100 and 400 cars on Fridays and Saturdays. The movie season lasts from May 1 to Columbus Day.

It's a family business. One young son works the gate and watches for extra people being smuggled in under blankets. Another son helps in the concession stand with the mother, Erika Trapp, dispensing Creamsicles and $2 popcorn.

Movie fans can find paradise beyond the dashboard light at quirky drive-in motels.

Motel guests who need a snack must make the short walk outside. The concession stand does not deliver.

The Fairlee aims for family entertainment. It rarely includes an R-rated movie in its second-run lineup.

Peter Trapp works the projector. He talks about a recent weekend when the Fairlee had its worst fog ever. Still, when it lifted, the field had about 30 cars. "What do 30 carloads of teenagers do here? I don't wanna know," he says.

Trapp was drawn to the Fairlee by nostalgia. He went to camp at Lake Fairlee as a child. The camp brought the kids to the drive-in every Saturday night, and he and his wife later decided the area was a good place to spend the summer.

The history of the Fairlee remains a bit of a mystery. Trapp turns around and points to an old, enameled washing machine next to old film containers. The family doesn't know why the original owner decided to merge a drive-in with a motel, but they do know he used the time during films to wash clothes.

Trapp moves outside to check the sky. The scattered speakers play oldies music. The humid air is scented with cow manure. Behind us, at the motel, the line of low-slung rooms shows one with a television going.

The novelty of watching a drive-in movie from a motel room is worth a look for most people, but just a look, he says. Most people, he adds, "don't watch the movie; they just watch the people when they come. Then they watch the 100-plus channels on TV."

Finally, the night is dark enough. The lights switch off and the screen goes on. From the cars and the blankets, people applaud. From the rooms, you can't really tell. CARA ANNA (AP)

Music

Archive project races to preserve Hebrew and Yiddish songs

The woman was in her 90s and about to move to a nursing home in Boca Raton, Fla., when Rhea Bertelli met her. The woman's husband had been a cantor who sang in synagogues, and her home was filled with records and sheet music of Hebrew and Yiddish songs. But the music was in danger of being lost.

"Her children were totally uninterested," said Bertelli, meaning the woman faced the prospect of having to throw out the entire collection. But instead, the papers and records were donated to the Judaica Music Rescue Project at Florida Atlantic University, where Bertelli is a volunteer.

Bertelli, 81, said she and her fellow workers have many similar stories. Since the project started in 2002, they've gathered more than 9,000 records — LPs, 45s and 78s — as well as eight-track tapes, cassettes and other materials that offer a picture of the European immigrant experience in the United States in the last century.

The project's director, Nathan Tinanoff, says some institutions have donated large collections, but he also gets packages of records from around the country, sent by people cleaning out closets, garages or attics.

The Judaica Sound Archives now has about 60,000 songs, many in Yiddish, and has become one of the country's largest repositories of Jewish music. Organizers at the Florida archive and two smaller institutions in the Northeast say they're racing to save this past as the children or grandchildren of the original owners of the records are thinking about throwing out their musical inheritance.

Maxine Schackman, the sound archives assistant director, said the collection also captures important history. She points to songs like "Roumania, Roumania," about immigrants remembering their homeland, and "Die Greene Cousine," about a woman who came to America expecting instant wealth and instead had to work in a factory.

"This is about the history of America and the history of Jews in America," Schackman said.

Florida's archive isn't the only effort to preserve Jewish sounds. A professor at Dartmouth College started an online archive some four years ago; it now offers some 7,500 tracks. And the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia has a collection of Yiddish music with some 3,000 songs.

Archive curators say saving the music can be difficult both because people may throw it out and because the materials on which the sound is recorded are deteriorating.

"The vast majority of people couldn't care less" about what he's doing, said Alex Hartov, who started the Dartmouth archive. But he added one fellow professor now uses the collection in his teaching, a practice Hartov hopes will expand.

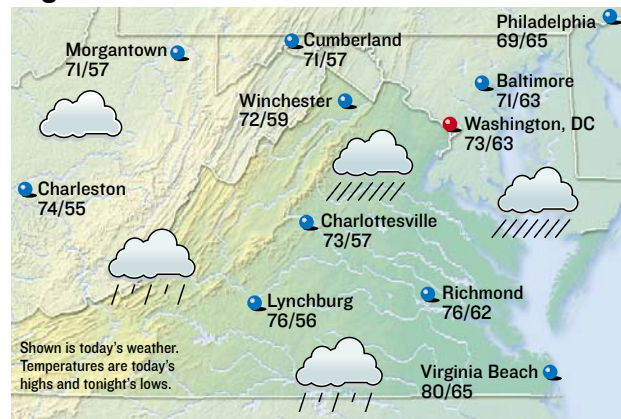

Bob Freedman, who runs the archive at the University of Pennsylvania, says his collection is perfect for classrooms and he'll often use the music in workshops on history. "I can do something on immigration, on folklore, language classes," he said. "It gives people who aren't Jewish a sense of the culture."

and a terra cotta-colored blouse with a V-neck didn't plunge too low to make an elegant outfit with a leather-and-suede patchwork pencil skirt.

The last two dresses were almost identical — both were navy, one-shoulder gowns with a nautical rope braid — but one was in jersey, which gave it a more casual feel and a lot of movement, while the other was a floaty, more romantic chiffon.

BEHNAZ SARAFPOUR: So what if the first model on the runway — wearing a black-and-white spotted sheath dress — looked a little like a Dalmatian puppy? Dalmatians are cute, right? That's sort of how the rest of the show went.

The clothes, which were almost all black or white except for a few metallics, were cute and perky and channeled a bit of the '60s vibe that has been felt at Fashion Week.

Some of the best looks were a black off-the-shoulder capelet dress, a cream-colored chemise with a polo collar and a geometric cutout in the back, and a skin-tight platinum lurex tank top with matching pencil skirt.

MONIQUE LHUILLIER: Los Angeles-based Monique Lhuillier had the gold, linen and sand colors and bubble hems that have emerged as trends for spring, but she made everything a little trimmer and a little more tailored. The result: wearable, sophisticated clothes.

"This season's woman is strong and confident," Lhuillier said in her notes for Tuesday's show. For daytime, that means a modified military jacket with an embellished waist and slim trousers or a cropped, double-breasted swing coat with a pencil skirt. For evening, the designer created airy chiffon gowns with "illusion necklines" — crystals and other beads on sheer fabrics that create the look of a necklace.

A beige linen gown with a pouffy tufted bottom still had shape, thanks to a pleated bodice and an embellished waist, proving that clothes don't have to be too tight or too loose to make a lasting impression. SAMANTHA CRITCHELL (AP)

Runway REPORT

A Skirt Alert

Hemlines rise, swing, flirt, kick and expose knees to the world

For those who still measure fashion seasons in hemlines, the news from New York Fashion Week for spring 2007 is short and swingy.

Designers are hiking up hems for otherwise office-friendly suits, while also showing beachy shifts and swing dresses that seem rooted in early 1960s style.

BETSEY JOHNSON: Betsey Johnson sent a parade of ruffled, tiered and baby-doll dresses down the runway, hitting notes sounded by other designers — to a rock 'n' roll beat. Yes, a red polka-dot swim-suit was sexy, as were other outfits, but she flexed her designer muscles with a baby blue organdy pintucked blouse and pencil skirt, a black crepe pleated sheath and a flirty plaid taffeta bubble dress. She also paired a black gingham babydoll dress with a tuxedo jacket and a green tweed coat with a striped linen pinafore.

DEREK LAM: This was the little collection that could. The clothes weren't overdone or overstyled, or thrust down the runway with glitz and glamour. Instead, Lam presented a lovely line full of subtle, well-executed details.

His trench coat was collarless and done in a quilt-patchwork fabric, complete with ticking stripes. A khaki suede empire-waist, A-line coat had an asymmetrical line,

Of Butterflies and Trash

FRIENDSHIP HEIGHTS | There are many changes afoot at the intersection of Wisconsin and Western avenues Northwest. On the D.C. side, Mazza Gallerie is getting a facade renovation. When complete, a three-story display of glass butterflies will give the 32-year-old shopping center — and the busy intersection — a dramatic new look. But across the street at the old Hecht's department store, there's a big mess. A reader writes in: "... [I]n the last two weeks, I have seen the Hecht's on the corner of Wisconsin and Western go to trash. We live near there, and walk past it en route to the Metro. It's now behind a chain-link fence and has become a repository for garbage. The garbage pails are no longer being emptied, so everything is strewn on the ground. It's disgusting ...."

Unlike the rest of the old Hecht's department store chain, the Friendship Heights location is becoming a Bloomingdale's, not a Macy's. MICHAEL GRASS (EXPRESS)

Is Dan Snyder a Scientologist? How does he get so cozy with Cruise all of a sudden?

A.A.: Dan Snyder is not a Scientologist. He became friends with Tom Cruise the old-fashioned way — by showing him with money. As you may recall, Cruise had an ugly split with Paramount a couple weeks ago and promptly rebounded by announcing that he was going to run his own production company with the help of our own 'Skins' owner, who will write him a multimillion-dollar check every year.

We were just wondering why he still appeared to be lingering in our fine city — and now comes news that he may be filming a movie around here.

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your ability to organize will serve you and those around you quite well. See to issues that have been overlooked at home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You can lead the way for others, or you can go it alone. Each approach brings you its own rewards; it's only a matter of personal choice.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You may be visited by a premonition of sorts that gives you pause—but that also affords you a greater understanding of a personal issue.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) There's no need for you to be the center of attention—and, indeed, there are those who would try to keep you from the spotlight at this time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your reasons for doing one thing over another are very much your own, but you'll have reason to share them with someone before the day is out.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) It'll be your turn soon; you won't have to watch others having all the fun. Take care, however, that you aren't swept away by your own eagerness.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You'll have a chance to demonstrate your willingness to do what is necessary—but you'll want to temper willingness with wisdom.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're feeling confident and energetic at this time, but surely you'll have at least one formidable obstacle to overcome.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There's no reason to settle for anything less than your heart's desire. Put your skills and determination to the test, and be satisfied.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A moral dilemma is likely to arise before the day is out. There's no reason to think anything you do is less than proper, in some respect.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Someone you know may beguile you from your intended purpose—at least for a while. The results? A much needed interlude, for one.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may be trying to tell secrets, when only open and honest communication can really get you anywhere. Try to be more direct.

Cruise Cursed the Redskins

I AM FINALLY INSPIRED to start a blog. It will be called tomcruise-jinxedtheRedskins. What was he doing on the field? Our field? Messing with D.C.'s chi, that's what. It's bad enough to be forced to care about him and his insane, self-obsessed diatribes, his baby's young-looking mama and their doomed, half-Asian baby; but jinxing my favorite team in the world is where I draw the line. Every fan should feel violated. I'm calling for a D.C. boycott of everything Tom Cruise.

It's Not That You Blaspheme Our Faith. It's Just Timing.

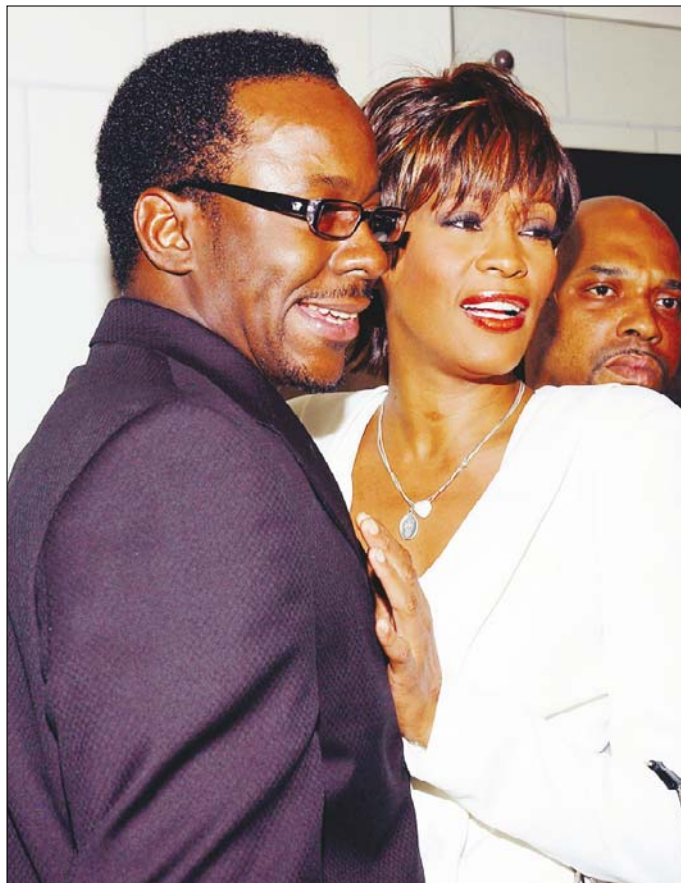

Russian parliament has rejected a proposal to book MADONNA a seat on a flight to the international space station. State Duma member Alexei Mitrofanov, referring to Madonna's reported desire to become a "space tourist," proposed that the chamber send a formal inquiry to the Russian space agency about a space trip for her in 2008. The Duma turned down the proposal because no seats will be available until 2009. (AP)

✱ NAME: Paata Tsikurishvili
GIG: Artistic Director, Syntetic Theater

IT'S ALIVE. ALIVE! "Frankenstein" is creating buzz on several D.C. stages this fall. The first is Syntetic Theater's adaptation, currently staged in a limited run at the Kennedy Center's Terrace Theater. Everyone knows the story: Mad doctor creates monster out of dead body parts, uses electricity to bring monster to life, is horrified by his creation and flees. Then, oops, monster strikes back by killing doctor's most near and dear. Director Paata Tsikurishvili, who co-adapted the story with company member Nathan Weinberger, discussed the philosophical, action-heavy classic.

What made you decide to adapt "Frankenstein"?

It's a universal thing. When I chose the plays, I am always looking for what is today's reflection. It's part of our vocabulary. It fits the way we do theater.

What's timely about the play?

It's perfect because we have the chance in medicine to create another human being. It's exciting, but it's against tradition, against religion. We're not making the point that it's bad or good. We let the audience decide.

Syntetic has done some pretty dark pieces lately ("Dracula," "Faust").

Anything light in the offing?

There will be some light moments [in "Frankenstein"]. "Faust" and the other dark pieces I've done — all of them are classics. There aren't many classics without blood or pain or drama. That allows me to bring action onto the stage.

Adaptations of "Frankenstein" often include a certain degree of camp. How campy is your version?

A little bit. You can't really avoid it, but we keep it to a medium. It's not the sort of thing where we go, "Boo!"

Why do you think the monster's so sympathetic, despite being a killer?

The way we are doing it, he's a killer, but because of society, he's forced to do that. He doesn't want to harm anyone. Every human being is potentially a killer — we all have that.

This is a play that has lots of icky visuals. How will you be showing them?

You will get the idea. The monster will have special makeup, done by professionals. But I'm making the audience participate, leaving things up to the imagination.

What would you say are the principal themes of the play?

The human condition: We are desperately trying to figure out the unknown. Progression is nonstop. Progression is the value. Also, relationships, how much has changed in 200 years. Sometimes I think things haven't changed much. We just have cute cars. ERIN TROMPETER

D.C. Labor FilmFest takes a hard look at everyone's daily grind

FILM | Faced with a decades-long decline in the ranks of organized labor, a pair of costly losses in national elections and the high-profile defection of a number of unions, the AFL-CIO's Metropolitan Washington Council is fighting back — by sponsoring a film fest.

This year's D.C. Labor FilmFest offers 13 movies, the unifying thread being that work is hell (memo from the AFL-CIO: Don't whine, organize).

Among the fest's highlights are "Nalini by Day, Nancy by Night," a short film about telephone service jobs outsourced to India (playing Friday at the AFL-CIO's building at edy "Office Space," which, though ignored when it was released in 1999, is now justly beloved by an ever-growing cult.

The excellent films "The Ax" and "Farmingville" also merit the trip to AFI Silver. "The Ax" is a dark and gripping French movie about a long-unemployed paper-industry chemist who resolves to find better candidates than himself for jobs in the industry — and eliminate them.

The documentary "Farmingville," meanwhile, skillfully captures the emotions surrounding the debate over illegal immigration and day laborers in one Long Island town. Directors Catherine Tambini and Carlos Sandoval offer in-depth interviews with immigrants, politicians and anti-illegals activists as the film traces the conflict over several years. TIM FOLLOS (EXPRESS)

Dog Day Afternoon

William Wegman's art is both funny & strange

LECTURES | There's only one more week to catch William Wegman's retrospective "Funney/Strange." But the best time to go is Sunday, either before or after his mid-afternoon conversation with Smithsonian American Art Museum photography curator Toby Jurovics. A catalog signing will follow.

Wegman acknowledged that in the eyes of some viewers (and neighbors) he has been reduced to "that guy [with] the magazine dogs," thanks to photos of his pet Weimaraners. "Everyone gets sick of everybody when they get too much attention," he admitted. "It's unavoidable. I get sick of myself when I see too many of my own pictures."

But more of Wegman is a good thing at the

The artist, left, with one of his four-legged muses.

Fans of Wegman's accessible work will be surprised by the drawings, conceptual pieces and video art.

SAAM, which offers the most complete overview of the artist's career to date.

Most surprising are several paintings that collage fleets of vintage postcards into fantastical landscapes and building cross-sections. A 2003 work dubbed "The Tilted Chair" looks like nothing so much as a theme-park map, with its crazy concatenations of impossible attractions.

"For me, it was also a way of reinventing cubism and surrealism at the same time, because the space required reinventing the horizon line. So I felt like I was an artist working at 1915 again," Wegman said. "And I also felt like I was saving something and holding onto something by collecting all these cards."

Longtime fans will know the short, no-budget videos, many of which render the familiar tropes of TV commercials even more absurd. In "Deodorant," Wegman floods his body with aerosol; by the time he's finished extolling the virtues of the product, his armpit oozes with foam.

In his drawings, as in his photographs, Wegman often makes walleyed jokes about the language of representation (in "Gulls/Waves," the same mark, inverted, describes both subjects). But he doesn't credit cartooning as an inspiration: "I was thinking more in terms of making the simplest line that wouldn't look like a sketch or an artwork or a study for a sculpture or something like that."

Wegman isn't sure people are attending thoroughly enough to the subtle distinctions that color his signature works, too. "I use different dogs, and each one has a sort of personality that I try to tap into. It's not like I get a dog like Lassie and every year there's a new Weimaraner version of Lassie," he said. "Maybe a guessing game would be to see which dog is which and see how they're different." GLENN DIXON

The Big Book Lights

The Jewish Literary Festival celebrates language and laughs

FESTIVALS | When he takes the stage at the Jewish Community Center next Wednesday, Harry Shearer will most likely not have yellowish skin, a sinister grin and a total of eight fingers.

The actor, best known (arguably) for voicing the diabolical "Simpsons" billionaire Montgomery Burns, will use his real face and his own voice to discuss his first novel, "Not Enough Indians," as part of the JCC's Hyman S. and Freda Bernstein Jewish Literary Festival.

The appearance occurs on the final day of this year's festival, whose eclectic lineup includes author Nora Ephron and former Secretary of State Madeleine Albright.

Shearer's book tells the story of the hard-on-their-luck citizens of Gammage, N.Y. With the town on the brink of bankruptcy, the residents get the harebrained idea to open their own Indian casino — run by the long-lost Filaquonsett tribe. Despite the venture's initial success, the townspeople end up getting caught in greed and betrayal.

"It's smart and it's funny," Shearer said of the book. "It might tell [the audience] some bad news about the way the world works, but it will make them laugh in the process."

The idea for the book sprung from reading an article in the New York Times on the Indian-run Foxwoods Resort Casino — a lucrative casino run by a previously obscure tribe. At the time, he was in the middle of writing a screenplay that was destined to go unproduced.

Shearer can't speak to who exactly would enjoy the book.

"I live in this charmed circle, apparently a very rarefied land where I don't think about what kind of audience I'm talking to," he said. "I just do what I do and hope that the people who like it would find it."

Other events in the festival, which is celebrating its 10th year, include Michelle Markel discussing "Dreamer from the Village: The Story of Marc Chagall," and a brunch discussion with Michael Lowenthal, Leslea Newman, Lev Raphael and Bruce Shenitz called "Dual Identity: Reflections on Gay Jewish Life." DAN MILLER

Speedy Tolliver was a fiddle man himself, but he wasn't averse to the banjo.

Banjos Need Apply

A beloved fiddle fest branches out into five-string mania

FESTIVALS | Sunday is supposed to be a day of rest. So give the family a break from your woodshedding and inflict your old-timey talents on a more grateful public at the Speedy Tolliver Fiddle and Banjo Fest.

Yes, you followers of the five-string muse read that right. Arlington's annual "non-competition" now welcomes both bangers and sawers. Because if there's anything that can make the screech of the "devil's box" sound as sweet as the harps of heaven, it's the infernal rackety-tackety that backs it up.

Please don't forget to bring your tuners — if not for yourself, do it for the crowd. GLENN DIXON

88 Keys to Monk's Kingdom

Jazz-piano master's legacy lives on in an 'extravaganza'

COMPETITION | This year marks the 20th anniversary for the Thelonious Monk Institute of Jazz. And it's celebrating in grand style this weekend as it hosts its annual competition, which will return to the instrument that jump-started its legacy — the piano.

Twelve pianists will compete Saturday in the semifinals at the Smithsonian's Baird Auditorium, in front of a panel of heavyweight jazz judges that includes pianists Herbie Hancock, Andrew Hill, Randy Weston, Dr. Billy Taylor, Renee Rosnes and Danilo Perez.

Then Sunday, the finalists will vie for the top prize of a $20,000 scholarship at the Kennedy Center's Eisenhower Theater. Second and third prizes are $10,000 and $5,000, respectively. The Monk

AVENUE Q: Super-producer Quincy Jones is one of this year's competition hosts.

Institute will also bestow upon Kalman Olah of Budapest the $10,000 BMI Composer's award for his composition, "Always."

Hosted by Billy Dee Williams, Quincy Jones and Phylicia Rashad, Sunday's finals will give way to a 20th Anniversary Gala Concert, featuring performances by the likes of singer Patti Austin, trumpeter Terence Blanchard and saxophonist Wayne Shorter, among others. Also performing will be previous competition winners, including pianist Jacky Terrasson, saxophonist Joshua Redman, trombonist Andre Hayward and singers Jane Monheit and Gretchen Parlato.

"It's going to be an absolute extravaganza," said Thomas Carter, president of the Monk Institute.

Indeed, the event is renowned for introducing phenomenal new talent.

The Monk Competition helped catapult musicians such as Redman and Terrasson to stardom. During its late-'80s and early-'90s heyday, the competition coincided nicely with major record companies hungry for signing neo-bop artists, sometimes sparking bidding wars. JOHN MURPH

DON'T CALL IT A SUPERGROUP: Smoggers Kraig Johnson, Marc Perlman, Jody Stephens, Gary Louris and Dan Murphy are better known for the other bands they play in.

Something in the Air

Friends from the Minneapolis scene form a Golden Smog

MUSIC | No one ever says "There's that guy from Golden Smog."

That's because every guy in

Golden Smog, coming to the 9:30 Club on Friday, has a more famous band to claim. Jeff Tweedy is better known for Wilco, Dan Murphy for Soul Asylum, Gary Louris and Marc Perlman for the Jayhawks and Kraig Johnson for Run Westy Run. Writers inevitably call it a "supergroup," but it's more like a support group.

Because this ship has no captain, the performances on their latest album, "Another Fine Day," sound ego-less, spontaneous, unfussy — and fun. It betrays the band's origins as an excuse for friends from the Minneapolis rock scene to hang out, drink beer, and play Eagles covers. Low-maintenance, in other words.

"There's a lot of collaborators in this," said Johnson, "but everybody has a good time and no one sweats this band. If there's a couple of mistakes or whatever, when we're done we look at each other and we're having fun. I know it sounds corny. But that's probably why it's so good, because no one's worried about it."

The bittersweet tune "Listen Joe," co-written by Jeff Tweedy and Gary Louris, stands among the strongest offerings of either's full-time outfit. An acoustic guitar strums as the two sing, "Surprise, surprise, everyone dies ... And no matter where you go, and no matter what is true, I will always think of you."

The title track, sung by Murphy over piano lines and guitar squall, is one where the entire band really came together to nail a moment. "I'm really proud of that one," said Johnson.

The band initially convened on the southern coast of Spain to record together. Not because alleged "supergroups" require exotic locales, but because Louris is part-owner of a house there. It was a month to get away, drink and smoke, make songs and record in a neighbor's studio. After all, that's what friends do. BOB MASSEY

SATIRE'S FIGHTING DOG: The German magazine Simplicissimus hit its satirical peak during the Weimar Republic, sending up everything in its path, including the kaiser, the military, politics, bureaucracy and the system while creating a recognizably warped vision of daily life. Now, Goethe-Institut displays reproductions of many of the magazine's pre-WWI caricatures in "Simplicissimus and the Empire, 1896-1914."

Catching Enemy Secrets

The Spy Museum retells the remarkable story of Moe Berg

FILM | Could Redskins running back Clinton Portis have a post-NFL career as a ... CIA spy? If he wanted to try, he could learn from Moe Berg.

Berg was a mediocre yet well-known catcher with five major-league baseball teams, including the Washington Senators. It wasn't the political atmosphere of Washington that turned him on to spying, however, but a photography hobby he picked up in Japan.

"He was training baseball players," said International Spy Museum historian Thomas Boghardt. "He took some pictures, and these pictures were later analyzed by the Office of Strategic Services during the war."

COURTESY/ISM

The catcher was a spy, and also a Jewish man undercover in Europe.

After Berg's baseball career went kaput, he used those contacts to become a full-time spy. It didn't hurt that he was fluent in five languages, well traveled and a news junkie.

Berg gathered important information about Axis attempts to build an atomic bomb, even shadowing famed physicists such as Werner Heisenberg.

"If they had caught him and had determined that he was Jewish — but had not determined he was a spy — he would still not have been treated very well," Boghardt said.

That work led to his induction into the Jewish-American Hall of Fame, sponsoring "Moe Berg: Baseball's Man of Mystery" at the museum on Sunday. The event features a discussion of his life and career. An ESPN documentary on Berg will also be screened.

When it comes to athlete-spies, Berg — inspiration for the tennis-star agent in "Mission: Impossible" — is "the first one that comes to mind," Boghardt said. "He was all over the place." CHRIS MINCHER (EXPRESS)

Written in a politically cantankerous time eerily similar to our own, the play tells the story of a charismatic and idealistic businessman being groomed for the presidency. Like candidates of our own time, he must answer the age old question: does he trust the people or trust his handlers? Perfect for mid-term elections, it's a wild ride of politics, power and personalities.

Is That All There Is?

A twentysomething icon takes a hard look at settling down

PAYING THE RENT | In the comedy "The Last Kiss," Zack Braff plays Michael, a successful architect with a beautiful live-in girlfriend and a baby on the way. Trouble is, Michael isn't sure he's ready to settle down. So he decides to risk it all for one last fling.

Afterwards, wracked with guilt, Michael is torn between confessing his transgression or deceiving his girlfriend and hoping for the best. Meanwhile, Michael's closest friends are experiencing their own assorted crises. Turning 30, it appears, isn't easy.

Starring alongside Braff are Jacinda Barrett, Casey Affleck, Rachel Bilson, Blythe Danner and Tom Wilkinson.

Braff's star has been on the rise since Bill Lawrence cast him in "Scrubs" in 2001. Braff stars as overworked medical intern John "JD" Dorian on the popular TV series, now entering its sixth, and possibly last, season.

Braff explains that he was compelled to take on the role of Michael in "The Last Kiss" because it is a character he could easily identify with. "In our early 30s, we wrestle with the question, 'She's the one, I think, but am I ready to be with the last girl I'm ever going to kiss?'" he said. He believes that today's young people are skittish about marriage because of the prevalence of divorce.

"The Last Kiss" offers no pat answers and no obvious happy endings. "One of the reasons I wanted to do this movie was because I found the script so refreshing," said Braff. "It was about a human being that _____s up and makes mistakes, and don't we all?"

He recently wrapped the romantic comedy "Fast Track," with Amanda Peet. Braff and his brother Adam are co-writing an adaptation of the children's book, "Andrew Henry's Meadow." He also recently voiced the title character in Disney's animated "Chicken Little."

With the upcoming season of "Scrubs" possibly being the last, Braff is feeling reflective. "I'll miss it," he said. "But I think you've got to start a new chapter after six years. I don't want to be like ["Saved by the Bell's"] Screech. I don't want to be selling T-shirts to save my house." ANGELA DAWSON (ENTERTAINMENT NEWS WIRE)

Take 10

THE WASHINGTON POST'S FILM CRITICS TACKLE THIS WEEK'S BOX-OFFICE TOP 10

1 The Covenant

This uninspired composite of "X-Men" and the "Harry Potter" series pays homoerotic homage to youth and beauty and cranks up the heavy metal.

DESSON THOMSON

2 Hollywoodland

This movie is all but mesmerizing when it evokes mid-century Superman actor George Reeves with charm and affection as it studies his Icarus-like fall. STEPHEN HUNTER

3 Invincible

There's too much slow-mo and too many music cues in this frill-free 1970s football story, but there's a low-key buzz to Mark Wahlberg's scenes with Greg Kinnear. ANN HORNADAY

4 The Protector

Martial-arts master Tony Jaa kicks, punches, flies and dances his way through Sydney's Thai underworld. ANN HORNADAY

5 Crank

COVENANT OF CUTIES: "Can we summon Azazel later? I've got a pedi at noon."

A hit man (Jason Statham) wakes up to learn he's doomed by a "Chinese poison." This actioner is like "Speed," with his ticker as the bus.

STEPHEN HUNTER

6 The Illusionist

"The Illusionist" is that rarity, a movie made for grown-ups, which makes it that much more disappointing that it can't overcome a fatal inertness. ANN HORNADAY

7 Little Miss Sunshine

A quirky family in a yellow VW bus on its way to a child pageant feels like a recipe for disaster. But what happens is sad, sweet, enlightening and really funny. JENNIFER FREY

8 The Wicker Man

In an era of careful focus-group testing, it's remarkable that a movie as truly, deeply, madly foolish as this remake escaped the asylum. STEPHEN HUNTER

9 Talladega Nights: The Ballad of Ricky Bobby

The Will Ferrell send-up doesn't do much more than go for the quick guf-faw from redneck slight gags.

Rated Y for 'Yikes'

What drives the decisions of the Motion Picture Association of America's film ratings board? Director Kirby Dick probes the motivations and meanings of the such-as-it-is system and the lives of the people who decide what 17-year-olds can and can't see unaccompanied. → E Street Cinema, 555 11th St. NW; opens Fri., 202-452-7672. (Metro Center)

A Road to Return

Two evocative films from contemporary Korean director Lee Man-Hee screen at the Freer this weekend. "A Road to Return" (Fri., 7 p.m.) takes place in Seoul after the end of the Korean War, and "Water Mill" (Sun., 2 p.m.) is a fable about a village, a love affair and the rage of nature. → Freer Gallery, 1100 Jefferson Drive SW; 202-633-4880, asia.si.edu. (Smithsonian)

"All About Darfur" allows eyewitnesses and survivors to tell their stories.

True Stories

Not an escapist afternoon at the movies, the National Museum of African Art's presentation of two documentaries, one this weekend, is perhaps all the more necessary for being devastatingly true. "All About Darfur" (Sat., 2 p.m.) depicts the widespread murder, rape and violence within farming communities in that region through eyewitnesses' accounts. On Nov. 18, the NMAFA will present a screening of "Shake Hands With the Devil: The Journey of Romeo Dallaire." → 950 Independence Ave. SW; 202-633-4600, africa.si.edu. (Smithsonian)

Love, Madness And Gazpacho

→ NOW THAT THE BAD BOY of post-Franco filmmaking has become the grand old man of Spanish cinema, AFI Silver is hosting a two-week party to remind movie buffs of how truly subversive, how full of love and madness Pedro Almodóvar can be. The festival, "Viva Pedro!," revives some of his best early work — both the magnificently zany and the darkly twisted, between which moods he seems to alternate — and, frankly, some of his iffy mid-period stuff. Still, it kicks off with a bang — well, with a pitcherful of drugged gazpacho, a whole lot of stiletto heels and a very young and toothsome Antonio Banderas — with "Women on the Verge of a Nervous Breakdown," the movie that made Pedro a name and, eventually, a fixture, for American film fans. *AFI Silver, 8633 Colesville Road, Silver Spring; opens Fri., through Sept. 21; 301-465-6700. SCOTT SUCHMAN

DRESSING DOWN: "Red Light Winter" made a splash off Broadway last year for its onstage sex and emotional violence. But Adam Rapp's sensationalistic play, now being given an earnest treatment at Studio Theatre, is actually about a sensitive quandary: How can love genuinely felt be unciproccated? Is there such a thing as chemistry if only one person feels it?

STAGE | LIFE IS A REVIVAL OF 'CABARET'

SCOTT SUCHMAN

WILLKOMMEN, SUCKERS: Kander and Ebb's "Cabaret" still has the sleaziest, most insinuating score on any stage. Arena Stage revives "Cabaret" and its Weimar-era decadence with a cast that includes Brad Oscar as the Emcee.

Richard Roeper and Aisha Tyler, Guest Critic, Ebert@Rooper

"Very Smart..."

It just really rings true...you're rooting for these characters... This is smart and good and honest and true and I hope people check it out."

Richard Roeper, Ebert & Roeper

"Very Sexy..."

There's a lot of comedy here...It's smart, sad funny and true, and it has a killer score."

Eating Around

OPENINGS

In Downtown, Now Good Things Now Come in Sevens

On the northern end of the greater Gallery Place-Chinatown-Penn Quarter area downtown, the number seven will be making its presence known. PS 7's, at 777 I St. NW, opens today and its chef/owner Peter Smith will be reintroduced to the Washington restaurant scene. Most recently the executive chef at the venerable Vidalia, Smith now has a kitchen and 130-seat restaurant to call his own. And while contemporary modern American cuisine may be hard to pin a precise definition to, at PS 7's, the number 7 is something that pops up throughout.

Smith's menu is divided into seven sections, each at a different price point ($10, $12.50, $15, $22 and $23), which allows diners the flexibility to pick and choose when ordering.

Smith also seems to have affection for trios. For instance, there is Octopus Three Ways: glazed with red Thai curry glaze, ceviche with uzu and red chile granite plus torchon with cilantro cucumber salad. Another trio: popcorn-crusted halibut. There's a prix fixe daily tasting menu designed with four, five, six or, of course, seven courses.

Last but not least, the seventh section of the menu is focused on desserts. The pastry chef is Naomi Gallego, a veteran of Equinox and Vidalia. MICHAEL GRASS (EXPRESS)

ON THE VERGE

Matchbox Has Space to Burn With Expansion

For those who have been eagerly anticipating the opening of Matchbox's 8,000-square-foot expansion, it's complete, but not yet quite ready for the public. Blame some bureaucratic loose ends to tie up with the District. Express got a sneak peek earlier this week of the new space, which includes a patio area with D.C.'s first outdoor fire pit, a glass-topped dining area and an expanded upstairs space. The original restaurant, known for its wood-fired pizza, was just 15 feet wide with seats for 75 people. Now the restaurant has double the area. When the new space does open, expect a little more breathing room. (MG)

→ Matchbox, 713 H St. NW; 202-289-4441. (Gallery Place-Chinatown)

ANNIVERSARIES

Bangkok Joe's Rolls Out Anniversary Dumpling Menu

When you think of dumplings, you probably think of Chinese cuisines, not Thai. But in celebration of Bangkok Joe's third birthday, chef/owner Aulie Bunyaratapham is rolling out a new menu of dumplings, wontons and other bite-size treats inspired by recent trips to Thailand. Look for items like steamed shrimp and chicken dumplings with ginger lime cream. On top of the dumpling menu, there's a new selection of small plates, including mini Thai crab cakes and soft lobster rolls. (MG)

CAROLINE NOSAL

SEVEN WONDERS: PS 7's hopes to earn favor among downtown dinners.

→ Bangkok Joe's, 3000 K St. NW, 202-333-4422.

HEALTHY CHOICES

Going Green (for Lunch In Pentagon City)

Eating at the mall normally means scarfing down a burger and fries or some Chinese. But it no longer has to. Salad Creations, a Florida-based franchise, has expanded to the Washington area. From the name, you can guess the chain's focus: salads, either tossed or chopped. Expect 15 dressings, wraps, smoothies and daily soup specials.

→ Salad Creations, Fashion Centre at Pentagon City, 1100 S. Hayes St., Arlington, 703-415-2599. (Pentagon City)

Ask Tom

I have some friends who are moving to Cleveland Park. We've taken up a sort of group housewarming gift and want to get them a gift certificate to a neighborhood restaurant. There's somewhere around $100 available. Where would you send them that they could spend that amount without feeling as though they would be compelled to order lots of drinks to make up the difference for a casual meal.

I really like the newish chef at Ardeo. You might also consider the nearby, French-themed Lavandou.

→ Ardeo, 3311 Connecticut Ave. NW; 202-244-6750. (Cleveland Park)

→ Lavandou, 3321 Connecticut Ave. NW; 202-966-3002. (Cleveland Park)

I have to give kudos to Equinox. I recently got married, and my husband and I had the wedding reception there. Not only was the food out of this world, the event planner was so helpful (she used to be a wedding planner). She went out of her way to make the night enjoyable, delicious, and affordable.

That's good to hear. Save for the private wine room, I've never much cared for the interior there, but the look is about to change: Equinox is poised for a makeover this winter. Co-owner Ellen Gray is calling the renovation "a new black dress." The sprucing-up will be done in phases, she says, so the restaurant won't have to close.

→ Equinox, 18 Connecticut Ave. NW; 202-331-8118. (Farragut West)

Since sampling some goat curry at the Adams Morgan Day Festival, I've been trying to find it on some local menus. Could you steer me toward some restaurants that do good things with goat?

Islander Caribbean on U Street NW

GETTING YOUR GOAT: If you missed the goat at Adams Morgan Day, all's not lost.

does a nice goat roti; El Chalan on I Street NW makes a delectable goat stew.

→ Islander Caribbean, 1201 U St. NW; 202-234-4955. (U St.-Cardozo)

→ El Chalan, 1924 I St. NW; 202-293-2765. (Farragut West)

How do you handle a waiter who mispronounces menu items? I speak Italian and my husband is Italian, so we know it's bru-SKE-ta and not bru-SHE-ta, for example.

I tend to repeat the name of the dish, as in, "I think I'll have a glass of the ro-SAY, please."

Can you recommend a place for Pho in northern Virginia?

The spare but sublime Pho 75 on Wilson Boulevard in Arlington is where I like to get my beef noodle soup fix.

→ 1721 Wilson Blvd., Arlington; 703-525-7355 (Rosslyn)

I'm looking for good Italian that won't put me in the poorhouse. I've tried Anna Maria's in Dupont, but I leave with different feelings every time I go. The place seems very inconsistent.

Believe it or not, I had lunch there last week. I felt like I was eating in 1969. For cheap and satisfying Italian in Dupont, I much prefer Famous Luigi's on 19th Street NW. And I'm hearing that Al Crostino on U Street NW has improved a lot since I reviewed the place.

→ Anna Maria's, 1737 Connecticut Ave. NW; 202-667-1444. (Dupont Circle)

→ Famous Luigi's, 1132 19th St. NW; 202-331-7574. (Dupont Circle)

→ Al Crostino, 1324 U St. NW; 202-797-0523. (U St.-Cardozo)

LIVE CABARET | FRENCH LESSONS

ENTERTAINER OF THE YEARS: Charles Aznavour elevated the art of chanson by bringing it down to the people. In the 1950s, the diminutive French singer used his distinctively unsuave voice to turn swellegant cabaret into a sort of Gypsy celebration of the life force. That force — and that voice — will shake the rafters of the Warner Theatre on Saturday.

Old Soul in A New Suit

➔ THE SUPREMELY TALENTED singer/guitarist James Hunter is a revelation. Gigging at Annapolis' Rams Head on Saturday as part of a grueling U.S. tour in support of his new record, "People Gonna Talk," Hunter sounds like a perfect pop singer at the dawn of the rock era — saxophones, analog recording and all. Hunter's silky, softly rolling grooves have already attracted supporters such as Van Morrison and Aretha Franklin. The British musician notes on his Web site that his music has simple goals: It "makes people feel good — it makes girls want to dance. What's retro about that?" Nothing. It's as timeless as can be. But everything's retro about the sound. TIM FOLLOS (EXPRESS)
